THE RAILROAD BOYS KNOW WHAT THEY OUGHTER WILL DO.

They Expect, However, the Men Above Thought the Matter Over and Will Come Back—The Prospect for Early—Starting an Eight-Hour System—What the Switchmen Have Put Through—Eight-Hour System on Trial.

[In the letter press below over one hundred and twenty-five columns of the railroads and general labor.]

No definite action was taken by any of the railroads yesterday, the officials being in a state of uncertainty and many not knowing just what to expect or what should be done. The attitude of the previous day most of such a character as to make it impossible to know the minds of the freight-handlers would not be satisfactory or to make it impossible to know what action would be taken by the men. There was no question about the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, but had some other railroads, notably a very, and would after opening and taking considerable action. This was true also of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, but of none of the other roads. All most that the proprietors of railroads apparently and with some of them almost the reverse of what they had expected. They were not willing to go out. They knew well enough that the men were not and had no reason for discharge, but the officers were in duty bound to their employers to get all the men to work that they could, and to get them to work promptly. They feared that if they did not get the switches would soon be unbalanced and the freights of a few weeks would be piled up in the yards and depots. Hundreds of these men have superiors who, they felt sure, would be glad to return to work, and would be glad to return to work for no one in the country knew this more thoroughly than the railroad officials who look for the return of their men at the usual time this morning.

They think that the enthusiasm which has been displayed among the strikers will have considerable effect upon the men, and that the men, if not overwhelmed with the idea of the strike, will be willing to return to work. The officers are not disposed to take any action looking toward the discharge of any of the men, and that course is not to be pursued unless it is absolutely necessary. The men who have been employed to take the places of the strikers will be retained in the service, and the officials feel that they have been treated fairly by the men who have been employed to take the places of the strikers, and that they will be willing to remain in the service. The men who have been employed to take the places of the strikers will be retained in the service, and the officials feel that they have been treated fairly by the men who have been employed to take the places of the strikers, and that they will be willing to remain in the service.

A large meeting of the freight-handlers of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road was held last night. The men of other roads were also present. The meeting was held in the hall of the Knights of Labor, and was addressed by several of the leaders of the strike. The men were told that they had been treated fairly by the company, and that they should return to work in the morning. The men were also told that they should not be discharged for striking, and that they would be retained in the service. The men were also told that they should not be discharged for striking, and that they would be retained in the service.

Grand Freight-Agent Fletcher of the Wisconsin Central said last evening that he expected the switchmen to return to work in the morning. He said that he had received assurances to that effect from the leaders of the strike. He said that he had received assurances to that effect from the leaders of the strike. He said that he had received assurances to that effect from the leaders of the strike.

The switching on the Chicago & Northwestern was done by the men who had been employed to take the places of the strikers. The men who had been employed to take the places of the strikers will be retained in the service, and the officials feel that they have been treated fairly by the men who have been employed to take the places of the strikers, and that they will be willing to remain in the service

The Trades and Labor Assembly held a very excited session yesterday. Ireland and America.

Wisconsin Editor Reads an English Tory—Mr. O'Connor Answers—Mr. Lincoln's Opinion—A Letter from Mr. Seward—Mr. Bancroft's Appreciation of Today's Issue of The Tribune.

The original question, "American Interests in Irish Home Rule," seems to be set aside for more English correspondents, because no previously sent from the recent movements of conservatives now throughout the United States that the cause of Ireland's movement for freedom has the approval of a majority of the American people. In connection with this matter I would draw his attention to an enthusiastic meeting held a few days ago in Washington, at which many distinguished persons were present, including members of both Houses of Congress, and at which a resolution was unanimously adopted expressing "the deepest sympathy of the American people with the people of Ireland in their peaceful efforts to secure home government." In addition to these facts, I would call your attention to the fact that the Legislature of Illinois (which, by the way, is the same Legislature that recently passed resolutions similar to the one just referred to) the Governor was requested to communicate to the British Government the sympathy of the people of Illinois with the Irish people in their struggle for Home Rule. Many other States have taken similar action, and I am sure that if the Irish people could only understand the fact that the American people are in favor of Ireland's cause, they would be encouraged to persevere in their struggle for freedom. Many other facts might be cited, but I will only add that I am sure that the Irish people will be glad to know that the American people are in favor of Ireland's cause, and that they will be encouraged to persevere in their struggle for freedom.

Having a multitude of leisure hours to spare by Sunday afternoon we had to spend our minutes. Some to visit your readers to describe some different from the parties to the meeting; to relate that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle. Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle. Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle. Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle.

The cost seems also very many more than the money. They will also have brought into the country large amounts of money, which will be spent in this country. Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle. Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle. Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle.

Do you see plainly the work of the statesmen? Can I understand the Irish people in sympathy with their struggle? Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle. Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle. Many of the speakers referred to the fact that the Irish people in this country had always been the friends of the struggling people of the Emerald Isle.

Mr. Sutherland should be understanding with the movements of regard that they manifested to my own views in relation to Ireland's struggle for freedom. I am sure

At the meeting of the stockholders and directors of the North Side Railway Company Saturday the plan for the extension of the Lincoln and Halsted lines to the corporate limits was ratified. It was decided that work on the new lines should be commenced at once, and that the cars be run over the tracks of the companies as soon as completed. The new lines will be operated by the North Side company, and when completed will give the company control of a large part of the business of the Northwest Side. The cost of the extensions will be considerable, though it is said that the company will be able to complete the work without issuing any new stock.

The Illinois Central completed its schedule of suburban train service and added a number of new trains, preparatory to a still larger addition of trains to take place on a week or two, when trains will be run every half hour during the day. To the addition of new trains during the day, the management is adding a number of evening trains, which will run to Kensington, Hyde Park, and other suburban points. There will be nine new trains put on, and when the new schedule goes into effect there will be a train every half hour from 7 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night. The new trains will be put on as rapidly as the necessary rolling stock can be secured.
